2. To promote modernization of cities, environment and people with peace and harmony
3. To promote social entrepreneurship and value re-orientation.

Oyo is an Imperial City of Peace

Oyo is a metropolitan city in Oyo State, Nigeria. The present city was founded as the metropolitan capital of the historic Oyo empire about 1837. It is now known as 'New Oyo' (Òyó Àtìbà) to distinguish it from the former capital (Òyó-Ilé), which was deserted because of the Yoruba Civil Wars. The inhabitants are the Yoruba people of Nigeria, and the paramount ruler is the Alaafin.

Education

Oyo is home to five higher institutions; these are the Federal College of Education (Special), Ajayi Crowther University, Emmanuel Alayande University of Education (Erelu Campus and Isokun Campus), Federal School of Surveying (The only school of surveying in Sub-sahara Africa), and Atiba University. We also have the newly established Master College of Entrepreneurship at Kelebe Community, Oyo West LGA

It houses numerous public and private secondary schools such as Oke-Olola Community Schools, Olivet Baptist High School, School of Science, Saint Benardine Girls Grammar School, Ladigbolu Grammar School, Oranyan Grammar School, Emmanuel Alayande Model High School, Aatan Baptist Comprehensive High School, Shepherd's Field International College, Golden Valley Academy, Nesto College, SPED International College etc. There are numerous primary schools both private and public with new crop of alleged "mushroom" private schools.

Commerce

The major markets in the city include the Akesan market, the Ajegunle market, the Owode market, the Saabo market, Oparinde (Oja-Oke) market and the Irepo market.
